Ford wants prompt inflation battle plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford, declaring that Americans are "sick and tired of having politics played with their pocketbooks," told a White House economic mini-summit today he wants a prompt, practical battle plan against inflation.

He quickly got a variety of suggestions for that battle plan, ranging from wage and price controls to trust-busting to public service jobs to more budget cutting and monetary restraint.

One by one, the 36 economists and congressmen gave their assessments, forecasts and recommendations in response to Ford's request as the meeting convened for "attainable answers sharply defined and sorted out."

Although there appeared to be no consensus on what to do, the panelists seemed to agree with Ford's assertion that "there is no quick fix for what ails our economy."

The President told the meeting he wanted "the unvarnished truth" — and he soon heard it.

Puffing on his pipe, Ford listened while panelists seated around a table in the White House East Room recited gloomy economic statistics: Rising prices, growing unemployment, a drop in real earning power, record high interest rates.

The initial speakers in the first of a series of conferences leading to Ford's economic summit later this month gave forecasts ranging from gloomy to hopeful.

"Another mild recession is sort of inevitable," said Harvard economist Otto Eckstein.

"There is very little likelihood of pronounced strength in any part of the economy" in 1975, said industrial economist David Grove.

"There is no near term improvement in prospect," said bank economist Beryl Sprinkel. But he said the rate of inflation may be easing.

Another bank economist, Walter Hoadley, said the American people are vigorously fighting inflation. But he warned that inflationary psychology may be starting to change spending habits.

Alan Greenspan, new chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said inflationary psychology is one of the major underlying economic problems.

If this can be overcome, Greenspan said, a major economic depressant would be removed.

Ford donned wire-rimmed spectacles to examine a series of technical charts presented by Greenspan to support a guardedly optimistic assessment of economic improvements.

Eckstein said "it might be clear some time next year that the worst of inflation is behind us." He suggested the rate might decline from 10 per cent this year to 8 per cent next year to 6 per cent the year after.

Ford told the session, broadcast nationally by public television and radio, that he wants the series of meetings to result in a package of proposals to "restore economic stability and sustain economic growth...."

Inflation is a worldwide epidemic, Ford said, but "together we can beat it to its knees."

He said preparatory meetings for the Sept. 27-28 summit, such as the one he convened today, are open to the public through television and radio because they concern the people's business.

"Gentlemen, let's get to work," the President said in concluding his opening remarks.

Ford plowed no new economic ground in his comments, but stressed the need for cooperation in finding solutions to such problems as rising prices and high interest rates.

"There is no quick fix for what ails our economy," he said, but "I refuse to believe the best brains in America and the smartest workers in the world cannot find a way to get the productive machinery of this great country back on the track."

"The burdens of the battle against inflation will be lighter if every American, all 200 million of us, lends a hand," Ford said.

He traced the ground rules for the series of meetings leading to the summit.

"We can't waste time stating and restating the problem," he said. "The problems are obvious...."

Ford said when the conferences are complete he hopes "there will be greater areas of agreement than disagreement."

"Where we disagree it will be necessary for the President and Congress to make some difficult decisions," he said. "Our political system is designed to do just that...."

Challenges grand jury

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawyers for H.R. Haldeman filed a petition with the Supreme Court today challenging the legitimacy of the grand jury that indicted the former White House chief of staff in the Watergate cover-up case.

They asked a lower court review of whether the charges should be dismissed. The attorneys claim that Congress extended the life of the grand jury "in the name of expediency" beyond its normal 18 months through "one single piece of novel legislation."

Haldeman and five others are scheduled to be tried on conspiracy charges on Sept. 30. They were indicted by the grand jury March 1.

The grand jury was impaneled on June 5, 1972, twelve days before the Watergate break-in. The jury first indicted seven men for the break-in and later returned the cover-up indictments.

House also fails first veto override attempt

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Following the pattern set by the Senate, the Missouri House failed today to gain a two-thirds majority in its first attempt to override a veto by the governor of bills passed in this year's legislative session.

Democrat Leo McKamey of Kansas City joined the Republicans in turning back the override attempt of a bill to give the American Bicentennial Commission more autonomy. It gained 94 votes, 15 short.

The Senate failed Wednesday in five attempts to override vetoes.

But even though the upper chamber was unsuccessful in overriding vetoes of bills that had been given a considerable chance, another attempt was expected again today on the same measures. The original defeats came with the absence of Democratic Sen. Edward Linehan of St. Louis, who could be expected to vote in favor of an override.

The House was to receive recommendations through its Appropriations Committee to override vetoes of $1.5 million for storm sewers in the St. Louis area and $1.4 million in capital improvements around the state.

"Right now, the capital improvements have the best chance," speculated Appropriations Chairman James Russell, D-Florissant, following a hearing of his committee on the matter late Wednesday night.

Although acknowledging that any chance of an override is slim because of the needed two-thirds majority of 109 House members, Russell said the capital improvements vetoes were in a favorable position because they involved revenue sharing money that would be lost if not spent in two years. He also pointed out that by going ahead with the projects now, the state could avoid paying the continually rising construction costs in the coming years.

The committee, however, failed to take a stand on some $3.5 million in funding vetoes for higher education after House Speaker Richard Rabbitt, D-St. Louis, said many department directors had confided to him they were afraid to publicly call for an override for "fear of retaliation in the coming years" from the executive branch.

Russell agreed with the evaluation after noting that many university officials who had decried the vetoes originally, indicated to the committee that they now could apparently live within the reduced budgets.

But Russell predicted that in light of the lukewarm attitude on the part of higher education officials, for whatever reason, "higher education doesn't have much of a chance as it stands now."

Those vetoes had been considered by key legislators as having a good chance of being overridden.

Earlier Wednesday, the Senate fell three votes short in gaining the 23-vote majority needed to override the veto of a bill to increase aid to junior colleges, the one rejected measure given the best chance of a successful override attempt by legislative leaders.

Two more ambassadorships reportedly offered by Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford, continuing to put his own stamp on the American foreign policy establishment, reportedly has offered Sen. J.W. Fulbright the job as ambassador to Great Britain and Peter M. Flanigan the Spanish ambassadorship.

The Associated Press was told this today on the heels of three major Ford diplomatic appointments announced Wednesday.

Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, lost a reelection bid earlier this year in the Arkansas Democratic primary. It was learned that British officials have approved the Fulbright nomination and "it was cleared with key Republicans" in Congress. However, Fulbright, after at first expressing interest, later said he wanted to think about accepting, it was learned.

Flanigan was assistant for international economic affairs to former President Richard M. Nixon. It was learned that his nomination is in process but the White House has not yet heard from Spain, where chief of state Francisco Franco resumed his post last week after a serious illness.

Ambassadors must be approved by countries to which they are assigned.

According to U.S. officials and some foreign diplomats assigned here, two of Ford's major appointments Wednesday fall within the description of using the American foreign policy establishment as a refuge for people whose past identification with Nixon could embarrass the Ford White House.

The sources also included the White House decision to restore presidential chief of staff Alexander M. Haig Jr. to military duty, possibly as commander of NATO armed forces.

Ford named George Bush as the new head of the U.S. mission in Peking, ending his 21-month role as Republican national chairman.

Appointed ambassador to France was Kenneth Rush who served as Nixon's economic policy coordinator and who once taught law to Nixon.

"This certainly is not a question of Ford trying to show he is in command of foreign policy by these appointments," a State Department source said. "These are not his people."

A Western European diplomat agreed. "He's showing the door to some men who could give him trouble, but he is not hurting them either. These are good jobs, but they are out of the American sight-line."

The evident exception to the effort to send abroad former key Nixon associates was the decision to name former Kentucky GOP Sen. John Sherman Cooper as first American ambassador to East Germany. Cooper was not closely tied to Nixon.

Fatal fire offers no definite clues

Chief Deputy Fire Marshall Richard Dyer told The Democrat-Capitol Thursday that a fire south of Sedalia that killed Mrs. Jean McInerney Aug. 25 has been ruled "non-suspicious" for lack of evidence.

Dyer also indicated that evidence may never be found to prove that five fires in the Westmoreland Country Club area were caused by an arsonist. One of the reasons, he said, was that the investigation of the fires was not begun, in some cases, until several months after the fire occurred.

Asked how long it would be before something conclusive was learned about the McInerney fire, Dyer said, "my reaction is that we never will."

Dyer, who was in Pettis County Aug. 28, said he has not been back because the state fire marshal's office is currently understaffed due to the resignation last week of one investigator. He also said that "the problem in Pettis County exists throughout the state."

The deputy fire marshal said more interviews would have to be conducted here to determine whether a pattern exists in a series of recent fires in the county. However, he could not say when these interviews would be conducted.

Another reason cited by Dyer for the delay was that the fire marshal's office is moving to new headquarters in Jefferson City. The state fire marshal is currently assisted by only four investigators, including Dyer.

A resident of the area where Mrs. McInerney lived told The Democrat-Capitol that at least 10 major fires had occurred in the area recently. The section of the county is bordered by Highway 65 on the east, Route ZZ on the west, Foute F on the north and Route V on the south.

The fire marshal's office also investigated a mobile home fire in LaMonte and three other fires in that area this summer. The home of the David Gray family burned in Dresden on Aug. 21. This fire is also being investigated. Mrs. McInerney is the only known fatality.

Enthusiasm, speed of team are noted

The quickness, enthusiasm and attitude of this year's Smith-Cotton football team will compensate for its lack of overall size, coach Greg Cook informed members of the Sedalia Noon-Day Optimist Club at their weekly meeting Tuesday at Bothwell Hotel.

Their first game of the season, Blue Springs, may be the hardest contest of the year, Cook said. The team last year finished with a 7-3 season, the best since 1955, Cook noted.

In other business, R. L. Settles reported that approximately $12,000 was raised by the Mid-Mizzou chapter of the Muscular Dystrophy Association of America.

Mark Miller was initiated as a new member by club president, Dr. J. Edgar Harvey.

The invocation was offered by Lee Deason.

Useless fight concluded

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the waning days of Richard M. Nixon's presidency, his family concluded it would be useless to fight impeachment to the bitter, predictable end, says David Eisenhower, Nixon's son-in-law.

"It became our conclusion that history will treat this administration just as unkindly simply for the sake of grinding the country down for another six months, given the economic chaos," Eisenhower said.

In a luncheon interview three weeks after Nixon surrendered the presidency, Eisenhower, 26, discussed the family's reaction to the politically fatal June 23 tape recordings and Nixon's decision to resign.

"I think he was surprised by the fact that his family was willing to go through it, if need be," Eisenhower said.

He also said it would be a good idea if Nixon ran again for public office. "He's been defensive... he's been bitter. He's been all the rest in the last year and a half," Eisenhower said. "But in calmer times under different circumstances, the man has a heck of a lot to contribute.

"If he went into the Senate, I think it would be a good idea... But I'm positive he's not thinking about it now."

Asked if he thought Nixon lied to the country about his knowledge of the Watergate cover-up, Eisenhower said, "I don't know. I don't know what's on the rest of the tapes. I'm not going to pass judgment on that."

Nixon was reluctant to tell his family about the damaging contents of the June 23 tapes, Eisenhower said. On Friday, Aug. 2, three days before admitting publicly that he had attempted to thwart the FBI's Watergate investigation, Nixon telephoned Julie and told her "something very serious had come up, that he'd probably have to resign."

He summoned daughter Tricia and her husband Edward Cox from New York and close friend C. G. "Bebe" Rebozo was in town at the time, Eisenhower said.

The family gathered in the privacy of the second floor of the White House. The then-president supplied transcripts and instructions "to think about it a little while and come back."

On Wednesday, Aug. 7, a day before he announced his decision to the country, Nixon told his family he would resign.

"... We were concerned whether the smoking pistol was here or not, whether the innocence or so-called guilt. However the issues were resolved, as a family it was best to remind ourselves that 1968 was not a mistake, that if the Nixon administration came to a premature end, so be it."

Widow of Pulitzer dies at 84

Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Eye exercises can help vision

NEW YORK (AP) — The widow of late newspaper editor and publisher Joseph Pulitzer Jr., 84-year-old Elizabeth Edgar Pulitzer, died Wednesday following a long period of failing health.

Mrs. Pulitzer, a member of an old St. Louis family, married Pulitzer in 1926, following the death of his first wife in an auto accident. Pulitzer, the son of American newspaper pioneer Joseph Pulitzer, was for many years the editor and publisher of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. He died in 1955.

Among Mrs. Pulitzer's survivors are a son, Michael, editor and publisher of the Tucson, Ariz., Star, and three stepchildren, including the Post-Dispatch's current editor and publisher, Joseph Pulitzer III.

Mrs. Pulitzer's father was William Boyce Edgar, secretary of the Edgar Zinc Co. of St. Louis.

The Pulitzers were married in 1926. They frequently traveled to Canada and to various parts of the United States, hunting and fishing. She also was a skilled horsewoman.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Are eye exercises harmful to the eyes or do they improve vision?

Dear Reader — If used properly they are usually good for vision. Any form of exercises need to be planned for a specific goal. Your eyes have a set of muscles attached to the eyeball that enable them to move in all those different directions, including rolling your eyes. If a muscle is weak and it affects your vision, the right exercises can strengthen it and improve vision.

Now let me point out that if you do exercises that strengthen the wrong muscle and do not strengthen the weak muscle, then you may make matters worse. It is similar to the problem of developing muscles to hold your shoulders back. If you do exercises that pull your shoulders forward the exercises will make matters worse. So, exercise of the body or the eyes must be done properly to be helpful. It follows a do-it-yourself project without an examination and the advice of your doctor may be more harmful than useful.

Dear Dr. Lamb — In one of your columns you dealt with effect of inhaling carbon monoxide pollution created by smoking on non-smokers. Can you please advise me where I can get a pamphlet or information as to who did this research? A friend disbelieves the validity of the harm it can do to the nonsmoker.

Dear Reader — Glad to oblige. A study on the blood levels of carbon monoxide in nonsmokers confined to a room with smokers was carried out by researchers at St. Bartholomew's Hospital in London. The report was published in Lancet, a British medical journal, the last week of March 1973. There are also other studies that show the level of carbon monoxide in smoke-filled rooms often exceeds the level safe for industry.

In the United States, Modern Medicine, a journal for doctors, published the position of the American College of Chest Physicians in its December 25, 1972 issue. The college believes the smoker should be separated from the non-smoker and has done so for all its state and national meetings. When the ventilation is not adequate, the smoker is "banished" from the meeting hall entirely.

In a statement of rights for nonsmokers the college stated:

"The American College of Chest Physicians believes that cigarette smoking not only is hazardous to the health of the individual who smokes but also is hazardous to the health of the individual who does NOT smoke, but who inhales the hazardous constituents in the air produced by the smoker."

"The College believes that the smoker, although maintaining his right to choose to smoke, should consider his obligation to society by not infringing on the rights of the nonsmoker."

In my opinion smoking should be outlawed in all public places and in all public transportation. Surely one of the basic rights of all human beings is not to be poisoned by the unnecessary habits of others.

Hospital room furnishing is meeting topic

A meeting of representatives from civic clubs throughout the county to discuss ways of raising funds to furnish rooms in the new Bothwell Hospital annex, will be held at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 30 in the Central Missouri Electric Cooperative building on north Highway 65, it was decided Thursday at the monthly meeting of the Pettis County Community Betterment Club.

Community Betterment Club representatives from each community will be responsible for contacting civic clubs in their respective towns, it was determined.

Addressing the group, which met in the State Fair Restaurant, was hospital administrator Don Feeback, who informed them that 20 of 32 rooms in the second floor of the annex have been furnished by individuals or groups. He then described the fund-raising procedures utilized by Cole Camp residents who earlier this year contributed $6,000 to the hospital.

The group then discussed possible ways in which communities and the county could observe the national bicentennial celebration. It was noted that special bicentennial flags will be awarded cities who submit satisfactory programs of observance and commemorative activities.

No official action was taken on this matter. It was decided that community leaders should contact the state bicentennial observance office to inquire about securing matching grants for special bicentennial projects.

A letter was received by the group indicating that Guy Krause, director of the state community betterment organization for the last three years, recently resigned. Under state reorganization, community betterment is now under the Department of Consumer Affairs, Regulation and Licensing.

Enrollment at public schools shows decrease

The tentative 1974-75 enrollment figure of 5,004 for Sedalia School District 200 is 27 less than last year's comparative figure of 5,031, school officials reported Wednesday.

The figures were compiled Tuesday and comprise the second of three attendance counts to be taken by school officials this fall. The first count was taken last Thursday, the second day of school, and the last count will be taken Monday. A spokesman for the school indicated that, if tradition holds, Tuesday's figures will correspond closely with next Monday's count. The final two attendance counts reflect post-Labor Day enrollment.

Attendance figures at the city's seven public elementary schools and the Hubbard special education center, which totaled 2,482, were broken down as follows: Horace Mann, 379; Hubbard, 155; Heber Hunt, 533; Jefferson, 171; Mark Twain, 385; Striped College, 109; Washington, 374; and Whittier, 376. Total attendance was down 45 from last year. The junior high school's enrollment of 895 is only one less than last year.

Showing the only increase in the attendance count was Smith-Cotton High School, which recorded 19 more students than last year for a total of 1,627.

On the parochial level, an over-all increase of some 50 students was reported at Sacred Heart Catholic School, where kindergarten classes are being offered for the first time this year. Enrollment for grades kindergarten through six is 194, with junior high school enrollment being 63. A total of 132 students are enrolled in high school, it was reported.

At St. Paul's Lutheran elementary school, a total of 130 students are enrolled in pre-school classes up to grade six. Although the kindergarten enrollment is smaller this year, an increase was noted in grades one through six.

Officials at the new Sedalia Baptist Tabernacle School, which opened its doors for the first time this fall, reported an enrollment of 11 students. Classes are held at the school for grades one through six.

The Faith Christian Day School has been discontinued this year, it was reported.

Officials want change in state fuel tax law

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — State Revenue Department officials have said they intend to seek legislative action next year to change a portion of the state's tax laws that has cost Missouri more than $1 million annually in recent years.

Tax collection chief A. Gerald Reiss said Wednesday revision of the law that currently prohibits collection of sales tax on gasoline used for non-highway purposes will be part of the department's legislative recommendations, expected to be presented by early October.

The provision, upheld by the Missouri Supreme Court in the 1950s, calls for non-highway fuel users to pay the normal seven-cent-a-gallon road tax when they buy gasoline and then file for a refund of the tax afterwards. But the state cannot collect the 3 per cent sales tax on the fuel as it currently does in the case of diesel fuel used for non-highway purposes.

In 1973, alone, when about 127 million gallons of gasoline was used for non-highway purposes, the state lost an estimated $1.25 million in sales tax revenues. This year, with gasoline prices higher than in the past, officials estimate that loss to be over $2 million.

Tennessee, Kansas girls win honors

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — A coed from Tennessee who has been singing since she was four and an 18-year-old cheerleader from Kansas have snared the first honors in the Miss America Pageant.

Miss Tennessee, Deborah Humphreys Kincaid, won the talent competition, and Miss Kansas, Karen Diane Smith, topped the field in swimsuits at the opening night of preliminaries Wednesday in Convention Hall.

Preliminary winners also will be chosen tonight and Friday, with 10 semifinalists chosen to compete in Saturday night's televised finals for the title of Miss America 1975.

Miss Kincaid, 21, a Memphis State University senior from Humboldt, put a lot of "life" into the medley of songs she sang. The titles were "Once in My Life," "In My Own Lifetime" and "This Is My Life."

She sang the same medley on a televised College Girl of the Year contest in April, win in which she finished third as Tennessee's representative.

She got nothing but a small wardrobe for her efforts in that contest. For winning a preliminary here, both she and Miss Smith were assured $1,000 scholarships, with the possibility of winning up to $15,000 in scholarships as Miss America.

Miss Kansas, a striking 34-24-34 brunette from Shawnee, just graduated from Shawnee Mission Northwest High School, where she spent four years as a cheerleader and gymnast.

Asked if she had any qualms about parading down the Convention Hall ramp in her apple green bathing suit, she replied, "Not particularly. It's somewhat unnerving, but it's worth it."

Miss Smith, who will do a jazz and acrobatic dance in her talent competition Friday, has been a cheerleading instructor as well as a dance teacher with 40 pupils in the past four years.

Miss Kansas said she sought the Miss America crown because "I like people, talking to them. I want to represent this country and am willing to work for it. And I do need the funds."

During a hearing earlier in the day before the joint legislative committee on energy resources, revenue chief James Spradling told the 10-member committee that his department was currently drafting new regulations aimed at tightening up diesel fuel reporting requirements.

Charges have been made in the past that users of diesel fuel have escaped paying the higher seven-cent-a-gallon road tax by claiming to use the fuel for non-highway purposes.

Although Spradling said he did not believe the "slippage" in collections of diesel fuel road tax was anywhere near $40 million as has been suggested, he acknowledged that his department does not currently have an adequate system for determining how much of the diesel fuel is being used for over-the-road travel.

He said, however, he felt the tax law on special fuels such as diesel fuel could be tightened up by amending its provisions.

"I'm of the opinion now that there doesn't need to be a major overhaul," Spradling said. "I think there needs to be some changes and clarification in our tax laws on special fuels."

The committee was also told by John Denman, executive director of the Missouri Oil Council, that the only way to prevent losses in collection of the road tax on diesel fuel is through complete audits of the users.

His comments came in response to a proposal that the tax collection burden be placed on distributors of diesel fuel rather than on the users, who currently report their percentage of over-the-road and non-highway use to the state and pay the appropriate tax directly.

Denman claimed that under either system, those who want to cheat on the tax can do so by simply supplying false information about their diesel fuel usage.

He acknowledged, however, that to conduct a thorough auditing program, the Revenue Department would have to have substantially more than the 14 auditors presently on its staff.

basis of evidence showing what had happened with festivals."

Sprague said he thought it was debatable whether there was enough evidence to stop it. Webster shouted that up to 10,000 persons were sold drugs, many for the first time.

Sen. Lem T. Jones noted the fairgrounds should be operated by a fair advisory board instead of the agriculture director, who answers only to the governor.

The committee also has recommended a ban on rock music festivals on public land.

Witnesses acknowledged that one of the promoters complained when the highway patrol made drug arrests four days before the festival.

They also said there was an informal agreement that the highway patrol would not make drug arrests on the fairgrounds and that local officers didn't want mass arrests because the jail was not big enough.

Sprague said orders by Lt. Gov. William C. Phelps, acting governor, declaring a state of emergency in Pettis County were routine orders when any National Guard assistance is desired. Medical personnel and towing vehicles from the guard were sent to Sedalia.

Costs of cleanup were estimated by Boillot at $26,916. The damage was more than $30,000, to be paid by the promoters. The state paid the cleanup costs, plus food and housing for highway patrolmen and state officials. Medical costs have been estimated at $25,000 or more.

Turnover of joint chiefs nearly total

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's nomination of a new Army chief of staff will complete a nearly total turnover in the nation's highest military body over the past 13 months.

The death of Gen. Creighton W. Abrams on Wednesday created a vacancy in the post of Army chief of staff, which Ford will fill some time after Abrams is buried in Arlington National Cemetery on Friday.

Top level retirements and promotions since early August last year have brought new faces to the jobs of chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, Air Force chief of staff, and chief of naval operations. Only the commandant of the Marine Corps remains as before.

Despite changes in four of the five members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, there is little prospect of any dramatic shift of policies. There could be some differences in style, with certain of the new chiefs less visible than their predecessors.

Pentagon sources regard Gen. Frederick C. Weyand, Army vice chief of staff under Abrams, as most likely to replace him.

Weyand, youthful-looking and vigorous as he nears 58, has been a close collaborator with Abrams in shaping policies credited with lifting the Army out of its Vietnam-era slump.

Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger, who wants those policies continued, is described by associates as holding a high opinion of Weyand.

Pentagon sources said it appears unlikely that retired Army Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., who left the Army to become President Nixon's White House staff chief, will return to head his old service.

Leaving Ford's options open, White House spokesman Jerald F. terHorst would not rule out the possibility that Ford was considering Haig to succeed Abrams.

However, assignment of Haig to the Army as its chief of staff after he has been remote from its problems for most of the past 5½ years, would cause resentment in the Army officers corps.

Indications are that Haig, after recall to active duty, might ultimately head to Europe to replace Gen. Andrew J. Goodpaster as supreme allied commander of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, although some reported opposition to Haig within certain NATO governments could complicate matters.

Woman is first to file as director

Mrs. W. C. Jones, Route 1, LaMonte, filed Thursday morning for the board of directors of the Golden Rule Nursing Home District. Although a resident of rural LaMonte, she seeks to represent the third district of Hughesville and Dresden township, where she said she votes.

In the Nov. 5 election voters in the six districts will vote for one director each.

The first district will include Blackwater and Houstonia townships; Longwood and Cedar townships will be in the second district; Hughesville and Dresden in the fourth; Elk Fork in the fifth; and LaMonte in the sixth.

The directors' terms will correspond to the number of the district. The director of the first district will serve for one year, while the director of the sixth district will serve six years.

The nursing home district was created by voters during the August election.

HEW accused of ignoring its evidence

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Health, Education and Welfare was accused today of ignoring evidence in its own files of widespread racial segregation in northern schools.

The Center for National Policy Review said in a 117-page report that "northern schools today are far more segregated than those in the South" as a result of federal foot-dragging.

The center, located at Catholic University here, based its three-year study on records of HEW investigations in 84 northern and western school districts. Some of the data was obtained through a court order.

William L. Taylor, the center director, said: "HEW has found substantial violations in northern districts but has failed either to aid the victims of discrimination or to cut off federal dollars."

Among the 84 government civil rights compliance reviews conducted in the North, the study found that 52 are still open and unresolved "although many, ripe with old age, are somewhat inactive." The average age of the cases exceeds 37 months.

"While a few staff investigations have been shaky," the report said, "HEW's files literally bulge with documented evidence of violations of laws."

The center said the most common violations were discrimination in assignment of pupils to segregated schools; hiring and assignment of minority teachers and classification and assignment of pupils to classrooms; and failure to help minority children with language and learning handicaps.

Public schools in Atlantic City, Hoboken and Passaic, N.J., South Bend and Fort Wayne, Ind., Toledo and Dayton, Ohio, Utica, N.Y., and Racine, Wis., were singled out as examples of alleged discriminatory practices ruled illegal earlier this year by the Supreme Court in another case involving Denver, Colo.

Continental Congress meets today

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Governors and other delegates from the 13 original states reconvened the First Continental Congress here today, and their goals are much the same as that original meeting just 200 years ago.

Among the draft resolutions to be put before the delegates today are a recommendation that the Constitution be amended to guarantee the rights of personal privacy and a proposal for a "broad declaration reaffirming our faith in the American system."

The proposed constitutional amendment on personal privacy would "guarantee forever that the people have the right to personal privacy and the freedom from undue governmental interference in their personal lives."

The two-day meeting, hosted by Pennsylvania Gov. Milton J. Shapp, launches the nation's bicentennial celebration, which reaches a climax on the 200th birthday of Independence, July 4, 1976.

President Ford plans to be on hand for the final session on Friday afternoon.

The focus of the two-day observance is Carpenters' Hall, a two-story brick structure near Independence Hall.

It was 200 years ago today that 56 colonial delegates from 12 of the 13 original states convened the First Continental Congress at Carpenters' Hall, seeking fair treatment from the English Parliament.

The original Continental Congress was called by the colonial leadership of Massachusetts because of British actions against the colony, including the Boston Port Bill restricting trade. The measure eventually led to the Boston Tea Party.

Youth arrested in molestations

A Sedalia man was arrested last Friday night by police and charged with indecent exposure, lewdness, immoral acts and disorderly conduct in connection with three incidents Friday morning.

Ronald Bale, 19, 312 East 19th, was taken into custody at 16th and Lamine.

Police said that Bale allegedly molested a Smith-Cotton High School teacher about 8 a.m. Friday near the school. He also allegedly attempted to molest another woman near the Rival Manufacturing Co. parking lot on 17th Street shortly before the Smith-Cotton incident. Police said a man answering Bale's description was also seen on the overpass on Broadway near the high school.

Police also reported that Bale has been a patient in the past in Marshall State School and Hospital and the Mid-Missouri Mental Health Center, Columbia.

Bale remained in jail Thursday morning and was scheduled to appear in Municipal Court Friday.

Q — Why can't kids living in the Anthony Buckner Apartments be picked up on regular (school) bus routes? — K.E.

A — P.A. Sillers, director of elementary education for Sedalia School District 200, explained that full school bus service is currently being offered students who live in the apartment complex.

A second bus has been assigned to the area this fall, Sillers said, to accommodate the increased number of students living in the public housing units.

Q — Why can't break-away light poles be substituted on East Broadway near the city limits where so many serious accidents have occurred in recent years? — G.P.

A — Bill Hiatt, district engineer for the Missouri Public Service Co., reported it would not be financially feasible to replace the current poles with break-away versions because to do so would require placing power lines leading to the poles under ground. While regulations now stipulate any new poles to be installed must be break-away ones, cost factors prohibit the replacement of existing standard poles, Hiatt explained. Break-away poles cost approximately $225 more than standard poles, he said.

Q — While we were at a local restaurant on Labor Day, at 3:15 p.m. a wrecker came and towed a car from the lot. The car apparently would not start.

Here is what I was wondering: As we watched the wrecker hook onto the car there were three adults in the front seat and I'm not sure how many children in the back seat. My son was told, when his car broke down one time, it was against the law in Missouri to tow a car with occupants in it. To me it looked very dangerous. What's the law on this? — G.L.G.

A — According to the Missouri State Highway Patrol, there is no law saying persons have to be out of a car while it is in tow. The Patrol, however, recommends that for safety reasons persons not ride in a towed vehicle. Sedalia Police Chief William Miller said the city does not have an ordinance on this matter either. Miller also said it's, "not a safe practice."

In last Sunday's Hot Line column several Sedalia surgeons were listed as belonging to the Fellowship of American College of Surgeons (FACS). Dr. Robert Stockwood, MD, and Dr. Elliot Braverman, MD, are also members of FACS. They were not previously listed.

Ann Landers

Adult privileges sought by Kid's Lib

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing to tell you about a new group that I am trying to start. It is called Kid's Lib.

We want the right to express ourselves without being told we are too young to know anything. We also want the right to smoke and drink if we want to at age 13.

I saw a man on TV the other night who gave me this idea and a lot of my friends think it's neat. He said kids at age 13 should be able to handle their own money, choose their own clothes and pick which parent they want to live with if there's divorce.

Will you back me up? — A Kid Who Wants To Be Liberated

Dear Kid: No way. You are adding apples and oranges and getting bull-feathers. I agree a 13-year-old should be able to express his opinions, pick his own friends and handle his own money (an allowance, in most cases), and the judge often will allow a 13-year-old to decide which parent he wants to live with. All those things are reasonable, but that crock about 13-year-olds being allowed to smoke and drink is strictly for the birds — the loons, that is. Forget it, Buster.

Dear Ann Landers: A letter that appeared in your column a few days ago could have been written by me — same number of children, married same number of years, and the same problem.

To outsiders we appeared to have the perfect marriage — and it was a very good one, except when it came to sex. I disliked intercourse, avoided it when I could and tolerated it when I had to.

The inevitable happened. Some little tramp in his office threw herself at him. The day he told me I didn't have to be bothered with sex any longer because he had a good substitute, I nearly died.

I went to my doctor and asked for his help. He recommended that I "psyche myself out" and suggest two books that ten years ago would have been banned as pornography.

Well, Ann, his advice saved my marriage. I decided to be the aggressor, something I had never done before, then I utilized what I had read in the books. My husband was amazed. And so was I. For the first time I enjoyed sex. We have developed a marvelous bedroom relationship and the tramp is nowhere in sight.

I now know I was frigid because I was ignorant (and Puritanical), but all that is over. I'm happier today than I've ever been in my life. Please print this letter if you think it will help someone else. Ann. — Enlightened Wife

Dear Wife: I do and I will. Here it is.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm having an argument with my husband about the violence on TV and what it is doing to the minds of our young children. I am also against his buying toy guns for our grandchildren. He says I'm a crackpot, that the violence on TV is a good outlet for young children and guns are a part of our American heritage. He also claims play gun-fighting is a healthy way for kids to express anger. Where do you stand: — Unresolved In Royal Oak

Dear Un: I agree with you wholeheartedly on the toy gun issue, but I don't buy the theory that either toy guns or violence on TV will make killers out of normal, healthy children. The trouble goes back much further. I believe constructive and informative TV shows are much better for children — and adults — than

Prisoner death is ruled suicide

MEXICO, Mo. (AP) — An Audrain County coroner's jury ruled here Wednesday night that the death of a city jail prisoner was suicide.

The prisoner, Donald L. Le-Coque, was found hanged in his cell Tuesday. He was arrested late Tuesday afternoon and charged with felonious assault, carrying a concealed butcher knife and public intoxication.

He had been placed in a detention cell and was found about two hours later by two policemen who had come to transfer him to the Audrain County jail.

Pin ball and slot machines seized

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Seventeen "bingo type" pin ball and slot machines have been seized from locations in the Kansas City and Jefferson City areas, the Internal Revenue Service announced Wednesday.

The machines, which paid off on the number of games won, did not have federal gaming stamps required by law, according to Richard C. Voskuil, director of the St. Louis area of the IRS.

Voskuil said confiscation of the machines was part of a continuing effort to enforce gaming laws.

Fond memories of 'chautauqua' times

By RON JENNINGS
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

From the way she held the commemorative stamp, it was apparent that something very special had caused the smile that suddenly creased Mrs. Camilla Walch Knox's face.

"My, I haven't thought of them in years!" she exclaimed. "I remember when we just couldn't wait for the shows to arrive every summer. It seemed like everyone in Sedalia turned out together in those huge, hot canvas tents to attend. There was something for everybody. I was young when I went, but I knew then I could never forget it — and I haven't."

The subject of Mrs. Knox's indelible recollections was the nomadic chautauqua show — that prairie-spawned, Populistic blend of elocution, education and the arts. From roughly 1874 to roughly 1924, the traveling troupes offered tantalizing samples of "culture" to isolated Midwesterners.

The stamp in Mrs. Knox's hand was released recently by the U.S. Postal Service in honor of the 100th anniversary of the chautauqua's founding.

"I think it's very fitting that such a stamp be issued," she said. "Why you know, the chautauqua probably did more good, in terms of bringing diversified programs to the Midwest, than anything else before radio and television."

"Chautauqua" took its name from Chautauqua, N.Y., where the first institution was begun in 1874, initially to educate Methodist Sunday school teachers.)

To hear Mrs. Knox describe it, the size of the crowds that used to line up in front of the chautauqua tents in Liberty Park around the turn of the century rivaled the Friday night throngs that now fill Jennie Jaynes stadium every fall.

"And," she noted, "we weren't very far from where they play football now. I believe they used to pitch the tents around where the swimming pool is today."

In many cases, the thunderous oratory and elaborate entertainment proved an irresistible lure for those longing to leave their homes forever in favor of the already-teeming cities. However, Mrs. Knox indicated, the programs also left their impact on those, like her, who remained behind.

"I guess you might say I first saw the wonders of what an education might do then," she said. A former children's librarian and free-lance writer, Mrs. Knox considers the chautauqua a key factor in her early learning environment.

One of her more vivid memories, she said, was a special visit by the "dean" of chautauqua speakers — three-time presidential candidate William Jennings Bryan of Nebraska. Accompanied by the ever-present white handkerchief and half-titled water glass, Bryan used the tent meetings as his favorite forum for oratorically advocating support of the silver standard and other reform measures.

She can't recall exactly what Bryan expounded on that day, Mrs. Knox said, "but I sure do remember the way he said it!"

"We didn't, of course, have any electronic speaking system then or anything else," she said. "But, then, you didn't need one. Bryan's voice carried so well, you could hear clear at the back of the big tent. It was really an experience, just to be able to hear him."

"They really emphasized public speaking and elocution in those days," she continued. "I almost wish some of that would come back today. I really miss hearing voices of the type that Bryan and others had. It seems like a shame that speaking of that sort has died out altogether. People today sometimes rely too much on microphones I feel."

On a lighter note, Mrs. Knox noted, there were appearances by such groups as the European Bell Ringers, whose members each rang hand bells to produce tunes. Another unconventional melody-maker was a musician who played musical glasses.

"He had several water glasses, each filled with a different amount of water to produce a different tone," she said. "He was able to play some pretty good melodies."

Over the years, other Sedalians indicated, chautauquas were held in additional locations around town.

"I remember when they were held in a big tent at 13th and Hancock ... and also where the television studio is now on Broadway," remarked Everett White, 1440 South Beacon. "They only cost a quarter for kids and 50 cents for grown-ups. Of course, money like that meant more back then, but I still say it was a pretty good bargain."

Cleo Cecil, 1314 East 13th, recalls several other local chautauqua locations.

"I know they used to hold them right across the street east of the courthouse where the jail is now," he said. "Also, they used to hold them between 14th and 16th streets on Engineer ... and in the vicinity of 13th and Vermont."

Despite differences in location, all chautauqua shows carried one thing in common, Cecil indicated. "I never saw a one of them that didn't have a full tent," he said. "People seemed to never get enough of them."

First threatened, and later overwhelmed, by radio and the movies, the chautauqua languished in the mid-twenties.

Nowadays, Mrs. Knox acknowledged, the term "chautauqua" summons up images of "country hicks being taught a thing or two by some city slickers."

But, she was there and she knows it was different.

"It wasn't that way at all," she said. "It was just a blessing that something like the chautauquas came along when they did. They performed a real service and I don't know what we or America would have done without them."

'Get-acquainted' night is planned

State Rep. Pete Stohr announced that he and his wife planned to host a "meet your candidate family night" from 6 to 9 p.m. Sept. 12 at the Ramada Inn here.

Stohr, who is seeking reelection in the 113th District, said refreshments would be served during the get-acquainted affair.

Transmitters not permitted

WASHINGTON (AP) — You should know that it's illegal now to place radio transmitters on the backs of porpoises.

Who would want to do a thing like that? Tuna fishermen, that's who. They do it because porpoises chase tuna and if you can locate the porpoises easily, you can zero in easily on the tuna.

Since the Marine Animals Protection Act is intended to guard such beasts as porpoises, the National Marine Fisheries Service has slapped on the regulation, hoping that fewer porpoises will be entangled in fishnets.

To dedicate two memorial fountains

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — The Reserve Officers Association will dedicate two fountains flanking the entrance to the Truman Library and Museum Saturday as memorials to the late President Harry S. Truman.

Ground was broken for the fountains last May during a week-long series of events in observance of Truman's birthday, May 8.

Truman was one of the founders of the Reserve Officers Association, a charter member of the Kansas City chapter and its first president in 1922.

The Kansas City chapter led the $60,000 fund raising drive for the fountains.

Air Force Maj. Gen. Donald Dawson, ret., of Washington, D.C., an administrative assistant to President Truman from 1947-52, will be the principal speaker at the dedication.

SUPPER FOR SIX

Manzo Tonnato Crisp rolls
Lemon Ice with Brandy Figs
MANZO TONNATO!

For economy's sake, we use beef brisket instead of the traditional veal in an Italian recipe.

Cooked beef brisket
2-3rds cup beef stock
7-ounce can tuna in olive oil, undrained
1 cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2-ounce can flat anchovy fillets, drained
1/4 cup drained capers
Romaine
1 cucumber, pared and sliced
1 pint box cherry tomatoes, stemmed

Cut away fat from top of beef; slice thin. In an electric blender whirl together until smooth the beef stock, tuna, mayonnaise, lemon juice and half of the anchovies; stir in 2 tablespoons of the capers. Spoon a little of this sauce into a deep platter or shallow serving dish. Add layers of the beef, spooning sauce over each slice as you do so. Add any remaining sauce. Chill until serving time, then garnish with the remaining anchovies and capers and the romaine, cucumber and tomatoes. Makes 6 servings.

Curry stains on kitchen towels, an apron or napkins are hard to get out. Sometimes, however, a chlorine-bleach solution will do the job.

Dance studio to open here

A dance studio will soon open in Sedalia. Registration for classes at the Sedalia Academy of Dance and Performing Arts, directed by Mrs. Ted (Sharon Lynn) Lenger, Warrensburg, will be held from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday at the studio, located on the second floor of the old business college, now known as the Banich Building, at Sixth and Massachusetts.

Twice weekly, programs for pre-schoolers will include tap dancing, baton, ballet and acrobat lessons. Pre-school classes will be held in morning or afternoon sessions on Monday and Wednesday.

Dance courses to be offered to older students (grade one and up) will include tap, ballet and jazz.

Mrs. Lenger emphasized the dance studio will not be for children only. "We've had ladies in their 50's and 60's taking dance in Warrensburg," she said. Mrs. Lenger has been the director of a studio there for six years.

"Most doctors say dancing is the best exercise a person can have if it's done correctly," she said.

Mrs. Lenger said cheerleading and pom pom classes, a modeling course and Polynesian and social dance will be taught if interest is sufficient.

The studio will be equipped with ballet bars, gymnastic mats, a balance beam, mini-trampoline and record player. Different props for creative dance will be available for pre-schoolers, she said.

Mrs. Lenger, a graduate of the State College of Arkansas, taught dance at the Arkansas School for the Deaf for one year. She then studied dance under Madame Kirtly, Janet Nel Kennedy and at the University of Missouri-Kansas City Conservatory of Dance. She currently teaches dance one day a week at the Recreation Center on Whiteman AFB, at her studio in Warrensburg and is studying dance under Eckhard Heidrick at the Independent School of Dance in Independence.

She will be assisted by Cyndi Winstel, Warrensburg, who has been an instructor for the Manhattan Modeling School; and Wanda Machado, a native Hawaiian, who is trained in all types of Polynesian dance.

"Unlike a lot of dance teachers," Mrs. Lenger said, "I do enjoy working with pre-schoolers."

"A dance teacher," she continued, "more than an academic teacher, has a tremendous influence on young children and is able to give the child a feeling of self confidence and self esteem."

"A teacher who doesn't understand this aspect to be as equally important as a new dance step can really make the child retire." Especially when, according to Mrs. Lenger, "dancing is bringing out every expression of the child in bodily movements that are attractive."

A conservative view

A dissenting opinion on Earth's future

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK
WASHINGTON — What does the future hold in store in 2024 for America and for the world? The editors of Saturday Review-World tackled the question last month in a special issue marking the fiftieth anniversary of the Review. For the most part, contributors found the prospect pretty good.

Microbiologist Rene Dubos, for example, expects a far better environmental quality 50 years hence, as science solves most of the problems of pollution that plague us now. The Russian physicist, Andrei D. Sakharov, foresees a world divided into "work territories" and "preserve territories" in which man may re-establish a natural balance.

Astronaut Neil Armstrong looks toward industrial development of the moon. Wernher von Braun, the rocket pioneer, sees a time when "a life without spacecraft may be as hard to imagine as one without planes or phones." Oceanographer Jacques Cousteau believes the seas, if they are managed wisely, could produce a new golden age half a century hence. Moshe Safdie, the brilliant young Israeli-born architect, contributes dream cities that he himself expects to see when he is 86.

Such ventures into prophecy are as old as recorded literature. The natural curiosity of man never can be satisfied by inquiry into what has gone before. There is always a temptation to look beyond the veil, and there always have been astrologers, diviners, prophets and mystics whose present stock in trade is the prediction of things to come.

Most of their predictions turn out poorly. As editor Norman Cousins observes, "the biggest changes of the twentieth century were not foreseen by the experts." Cousins is not talking of the technological changes alone; he is talking chiefly of the intangibles that shape the history of mankind. The very best crystal balls cannot foretell a Hitler, a Churchill, a Roosevelt. "The most important factor in the complex equation of the future," Cousins says, "is the way the human mind responds to crisis... Human experience is not a closed circle. It is full of magnificent detours and sudden departures from predicted destinations."

If I had been contributing to Mr. Cousins' symposium, I probably would have been more pessimistic about the world of 2024. Doubtless many of the technological problems will be solved; Safdie's cities may arise, and Von Braun's satellites will twinkle through the nights of the next century. But for all of Norman Cousins' unquenchable optimism, I wonder about the willingness of men and of nations to abandon characteristics that have seemed immutable thus far.

Is man essentially good? Kindly? Neighborly? Self-sacrificial? Are nations wedded to the Golden Rule? I deny it absolutely. On the contrary, the record is one long record of selfishness, exploitation, and conquest. Men and nations are mostly blind moles, burrowing in their own narrow tunnels, heedless of where they have been or where they are going.

What is the greatest danger, and the greatest madness, affecting the world of 1974? It is the proliferation of atomic weapons. (In his contribution to the symposium, McGeorge Bundy foresees a series of atomic exchanges devastating cities in China, Russia, and the United States, but he imagines a Great Covenant thereafter, with world authority over weapons, food and population.) Is there any indication that men and nations are disposed to avert the danger and to cool the madness? Nothing in the arms limitation talks provides the slightest encouragement.

Is the affluent United States morally and spiritually agreeable to reducing our own standard of living? It is idle to ask. Is India disposed toward population control? Are nations that depend upon the sea prepared to accept the radical controls that Cousteau perceives as indispensable for the survival of species? The policy is rather to catch out and get out.

I am not by nature a pessimist. The "intangibles" that Cousins rightly remembers may well appear, perhaps in the form of a worldwide religious movement of compelling effect. But will 2024 bring peace, prosperity, and loving kindness to the planet Earth? It is more likely to bring a massive compounding of the perils and deprivations that afflict us now.

Art Buchwald
Welcoming the new neighbors

WASHINGTON — Every time you come back from vacation you find some old neighbors have moved out and new people have moved in. Take my neighborhood, for example. You can imagine my surprise when I saw some strange kids playing on the lawn at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue.

"Who are those kids?" I asked my friend Marty.

"Oh, didn't you know? The Nixons moved out in August."

"They did?" I said in surprise. "It's funny they didn't mention anything about it when I left in July. It must have been awfully sudden. Did they give any reason why they were leaving?"

"No," Marty said, "one day they were there, and the next day a moving van pulled up and they were gone. You know how old man Nixon used to keep his thoughts to himself, so we weren't too surprised when he upped and left."

"That's a shame," I said. "He was a nice fellow and never caused anyone any bother. I'm sorry I didn't have a chance to say goodbye. Any idea where they went?"

"I'm not too sure. I think maybe Peoria."

"Why Peoria?" I asked.

"Well, they kept talking about Peoria all the time. Every time they did something they wanted to know if it would play in Peoria. So we figured that's probably where they went. But that's just a guess. They could have gone anywhere."

"Does anyone know why they moved?"

"Something to do with trouble in the government. The gossip we heard is that if he resigned, he'd be assured of a pension. But if he tried to stick it out, he'd be canned with nothing. So I guess he took the money and ran."

"Who moved into the house?"

"Family called the Fords. They're really nice people. Everyone seems to like them."

"What's he do for a living?" I asked Marty.

"He used to be a congressman, but now I think he's got some high job in the government, though you wouldn't know it to talk to him. He makes his own breakfast and he leaves the door open so anyone can talk to him. Those are his kids on the lawn there. His wife's a charmer. Used to be in show biz, I hear, but real down to earth. She cooks her own breakfast, too."

"It's good to have nice neighbors," I said.

"Nice isn't the word for it. Do you know the Fords hadn't moved in a week before they gave a dinner dance and invited everyone on the block to come?"

"No kidding?"

"Yep. And they say they're going to have blacks and women and poor people and everyone visit them."

"It's going to be tough to get a parking spot," I said.

"Everyone in the neighborhood is pleased as all get out to have such fine people move in. You never know who you're gonna get to live at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, and it could affect real estate values."

"Any other changes I should know about?" I asked Marty.

"The Ron Zieglers moved to California, and there's talk that Father McLaughlin is going to get a new parish somewhere. I hear the Pat Buchanans are leaving and also the Ken Clawsons."

"Jim St. Clair has gone back to Massachusetts to practice law and the Fred Buzhards are also leaving town."

"Wow, it's been quite a summer. Anyone besides the Fords moving in that I should know about?"

"Oh, yeah, a family named the Rockefellerers from New York have just taken a house on Massachusetts Avenue."

"Damn," I said. "There goes the neighborhood."

Local busing issue needs perspective

The National Association For the Advancement of Colored People has unlimbered a hasty broadside at the Sedalia Board of Education, which it accuses of gerrymandering school boundary lines for racial purposes.

At issue is the board's decision to quit busing black students from extreme northeast Sedalia to Striped College school. That elementary school had received its 8 per cent quota of black pupils last fall when the district's elementary desegregation plan went into effect.

Whether, in fact, a strict racial balance in each elementary school was an integral part of School District 200's desegregation plan, which was approved by the federal government, is now a matter of contention. The NAACP maintains that it was, while school officials say that Washington views the busing change as within the law.

The Board of Education, in voting 5-1 to quit busing black students to Striped College, cited the distances involved. Parents of some children attending Horace Mann School also had reportedly complained about the time their youngsters were spending in transit, since the schools are served by the same buses.

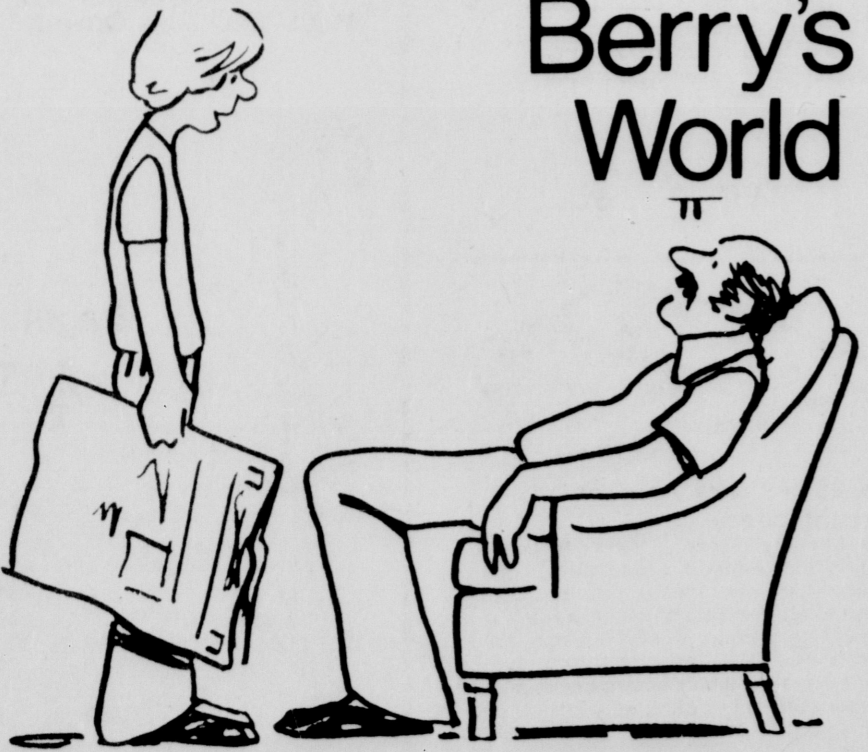

Racial balance busing is, of course, the crux of the dispute. To a certain extent the school board is caught in the middle: last November another local black organization, Partners For Progress, severely criticized the same busing of black pupils to Striped College in its effort to keep Hubbard School open as an elementary center.

In its telegram to the school board, the NAACP's Region IV office in St. Louis denounced an educational system that would "perpetuate racial strife and racial concepts of superiority and-or inferiority based on color."

Yet this is exactly what racial balance busing attempts to do, by inferring that black children somehow are incapable of learning unless mixed at strict, prescribed ratios with whites.

We do not feel that the school board's decision, in fact, contains the seeds of racial strife, nor that it was motivated by a racist mentality. Neither, apparently, do most of the black parents involved, since those of only one student felt compelled to complain.

Let's proceed with the school year, and let this mountain shrink back to its original molehill proportions.

"A kid named Jorge Lebron is playing professional baseball, so let's have a little more respect for fourteen-year-olds around here!"

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — On July 30 in Geneva, the foreign ministers of Britain, Greece and Turkey solemnly affixed their signatures to a Cyprus cease-fire agreement. The British hailed it as "the first step on a long, hard road." To the Greeks, it represented "the starting point of a fair settlement."

As far as the Turks were concerned, it was apparently an act of hypocrisy. Not for a second, it appears, did Ankara intend to honor its word.

This is the message that emerges from a document we have obtained from highly placed diplomatic sources. It is entitled "Operation Order No. 1," and it lays out the plan of attack used by Turkish forces to capture Cypriot towns near Kyrenia.

It is dated July 30 — the very day Turkey's foreign minister, Turgut Gunes, signed the Geneva agreement. At the precise moment the Turks were declaring peace, in short, it appears they were secretly planning to attack.

Although the document came to us from reliable official sources who accept it as genuine, there is no way we can completely vouch for its authenticity. We asked several experts at the State Department and Pentagon to examine it and give us an informed opinion. They timidly refused to even look at it.

We took it to the Turks and invited rebuttal. An embassy spokesman told my associate Joe Spear that he recognized the names of the Turkish officers listed in the operation order. And he acknowledged that the word "Kartal," used in the document, was the code name for Turkish operations in Cyprus. It means "eagle" in Turkish, he said.

The spokesman then declared that any further comment would be "impossible." The Turkish military, he said, "doesn't tell us anything."

The "mission," as laid out by the operations orders, reads:

"The 28th Division having the objective of extending and ensuring the security of the area occupied will attack on the 30th of July and occupy a line running from Hill 1023 West of Lapithos-Dassi-Sisklipos villages..."

Merry-go-round
Turkey two-faced
Cyprus accords

The Turkish attack actually began on July 31, not July 30. But the assault unfolded exactly as outlined in the plan.

"The 61st Infantry Regiment will move along the Road Sisklipos and the Sisklipos valley east of the villages Krini-Agios Ermolaos, following the Commando Brigade which will cover the regiment."

"The armored battalion of the armored brigade, with the tanks landed in the region of Kyrenia, will move towards Platani village along the road Bogazi-Kyrenia-Agios Georgios. It will attack the three tanks of the 39th division... The tanks of the tank battalion in the area of Krini together with the 230 Infantry Regiment will form a task force..."

"The amphibious regiment... will... occupy the Karavas Area and will reconnoit the enemy. The commando brigade will attack with its units situated in the area of Sisklipos and occupy the ridge southeast of the woods of Lapithos-Karavas."

"Towed and self-propelled artillery units... will move into the area of Sisklipos pass and will support the encircling maneuver which will be conducted in Lapithos area..."

The operations order also contains these instructions:

"American installations in the area of Karavas. They will not be destroyed and measures will be taken to secure life and property..."

"The units taking part in the attack will carry in their lorries food for 3 days. Movements during daylight will be effected in small parties and in such a way as not to be detected by the enemy. As long as the enemy does not fire we shall not fire either..."

Just as the plan specify, within three days after gravely declaring in Geneva that they would "desist from all offensive or hostile activities," the Turks had captured four Cypriot towns, including both Lapithos and Karavas.

Around the world, the Turkish ceasefire violations were strongly denounced. In Washington, however, there was curious apathy. On Aug. 2, as the Turks were shelling Cypriot towns, State Department spokesman Robert Anderson was asked for an official reaction. "I am not persuaded that the ceasefire is in danger or has collapsed," he said.

BELL RINGER: "Ma Bell's" children are not content with their phone system monopolies. They want equipment monopolies, too.

Pacific Telephone, Bell System's gigantic California subsidiary, recently agreed to deliver Model 812 PBX switchboards at a reasonable price to Levi Strauss, Allstate Insurance and others. But once installation was underway, Pacific drastically jacked up the price.

As if this weren't enough, we have now learned that even as its salesmen were quoting the original low price, Pacific's management was estimating how much prices should be raised.

Pacific also assured the California Public Utilities Commission that the additional PBX costs would not "increase any rate or charge" to customers. Yet, at that same time, Pacific was telling customers that some rates would skyrocket.

At Pacific Telephone, a spokesman insisted that the price juggling had nothing to do with trying to underbid competition and then hiking prices once the customer was committed, a classic way of driving out competition. The spokesman insisted that the low price quotes were made only by a few "overzealous" salesmen and that the deals could be terminated without penalty.

But we have located at least one low-cost contract which was dated after Pacific had all the data it needed to predict a realistically higher price. Meanwhile, a consumer advocate, David Wilner, is suing Ma Bell's Pacific subsidiary to roll back the price.

March of time

If Earth's total age, now estimated by geophysicists at about 4.5 billion years, is taken as a single 24-hour day, today's ocean basins are scarcely an hour old. By the same measure, the cave dwellers were hunting their prey less than a second ago; the past 500 years is but a hundredth of a second, and a 50-year working life is only one-thousandth of a second.

Textbook petition is denied

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A petition seeking to force private schools to pay cash immediately for any state furnished textbooks received after Aug. 26 has been denied by the Missouri Supreme Court.

Acting without comment Wednesday, the high court turned down the request of attorney Frank Susman, who contended St. Louis County Circuit Court Judge Orville Richardson overstepped his authority in issuing an order in the controversial free textbook case.

Richardson, who had initially handled the case which went to the Supreme Court, said last week that nonpublic schools could use state furnished textbooks already delivered or on order before Aug. 26 until Feb. 1 when they would have the option of buying them or returning them to the state.

Textbooks, which have been loaned freely to the private schools through a special state textbook fund, would have to be immediately purchased if they were ordered after Aug. 26.

But Susman contended that the high court's ruling in the case July 30, holding the plan unconstitutional, told Richardson only to settle the question of books "furnished" prior to Aug. 26 and not merely ordered. While the books in question had been purchased by the state for distribution to the private schools prior to the August date, Susman claimed they had not actually been "furnished" because the schools did not have physical possession of them.

Rules jury duty is included

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A St. Louis County Circuit Court judge has told the Missouri Supreme Court that the new majority rights law is constitutional and does permit 18-year-olds to serve on juries.

Judge Harry Stussie, answering the high court petition filed by County Prosecutor Gene McNary, denied McNary's contention Wednesday that the law violated a constitutional prohibition against delegating legislative authority.

Claiming the law, signed by Gov. Christopher S. Bond earlier this summer, does not attempt to amend numerous sections of the statutes, Stussie asked the court to permit the measure to stand until persons 18, 19 and 20 years old begin showing up on the jury lists.

The high court will hear arguments on the matter Oct. 2.

Sewers surveyed for future

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A survey of municipal wastewater facilities in Missouri has revealed that about $3.5 billion will be required to bring such facilities to the level needed by 1990, according to the state Department of Natural Resources.

Division of Environmental Quality head Kenneth Karch said Wednesday the per capita cost for improvements and new construction, based on the 1970 population of 4.7 million, would be $740.

The Sedalia Democrat. Thursday, Sept. 5, 1974—9

The survey of 315 wastewater facilities in 238 cities around the state showed that stormwater treatment facilities would require the largest portion of the anticipated expense, about $1.1 billion, Karch said.

Stormwater runoff is a major pollution threat in cities, officials indicated, and it can also affect small, recreational or relatively clear streams by washing dust, dirt and other contaminants into the water.

The survey was conducted at the direction of the federal Environmental Protection Agency and included all cities over 100,000 population and 20 percent of those under 10,000 population.

Missouri has received $74.5 million in federal clean water funds for the coming year and they have been distributed to about 60 municipalities.

In the past 20 years, annual beef consumption per person in the United States has doubled from 56 pounds to 115 pounds.

Secondary revamped For Tigers' opener

By VAUGHN HART
Sports Editor

It's down to brass tacks for virtually all Missouri High Schools playing football. The season officially opens across the state Friday.

Among those is Sedalia Smith-Cotton, which opens this year not with Marshall, but with Blue Springs.

This is the fourth straight year the Tigers have played the Wildcats, a member of the strong Small Six Conference of suburban Kansas City.

In the three previous meetings, each team has a victory; there has been one tie.

The season opener with Blue Springs breaks a 16-year tradition with Marshall, the Tigers opening-season opponent between 1958-1973. Smith-Cotton and Marshall are paired in next week's game on the Missouri Valley College campus in Marshall.

Greg Cook opens his fifth year as the head coach of the Tigers, who posted their best finish in 20 years in 1973 with a 7-3 mark, was a man of few words Wednesday, as he and the Bengals tuned up for Friday's 7:30 p.m. road game.

The light workout consisted of reviewing line blocking assignments, backfield execution, punting and defensive secondary work.

Cook has spent a lot of time with the secondary, which was riddled by graduation and a lingering knee injury to all-league senior Jim Vansell, who will miss Friday's opener.

If there are any changes in the makeup of the Tigers Friday, it will probably be in the secondary. Cook said Wednesday that he may move Marvin Spruell from safety to cornerback, opening the way for Harry Browder at one of the safety spots. Bob Trautman will remain at the other cornerback, with Larry Miley at the other safety.

Jim Fairfax, originally scheduled to start at cornerback with Trautman, would then alternate at that spot if Cook goes through with his restructuring plan in the defensive secondary.

The rest of the positions are pretty well set. Rick McRoy, a two-year veteran, will open at quarterback. He'll be flanked by halfbacks Trautman and Ray Newbill. Bill Deuel is scheduled to get the nod at fullback in the Tigers' Wishbone set.

Allen Fox will start at center with Bob Paul and Jim Barnes at the guard spots; Dennis VanBaale and DeWayne Stratman will be the tackles, while Jim Giokaris and Browder round out the starting offensive unit at tight end and split end respectively.

Most players will double on defense. Giokaris and Fox will be the ends, VanBaale and Stratman, the tackles, and Barnes at nose guard. Newbill and Paul will be the two linebackers.

Oddly enough, the Tigers closed out the 1973 campaign with Blue Springs, which resulted in a 7-6 Smith-Cotton victory.

Most of the starting backfield of the Wildcats is gone from last year, but lettermen return at all the backfield posts. All told, Blue Springs, which wound up in a tie for the Small Six Conference championship with Grandview and Liberty, has 13 lettermen back.

Headlining the returnees is 165-pound quarterback Mike Solomon, who alternated at that spot late in the season last year. He was named to the second-team all-conference team.

Center-guard Mark Simpson, also a second-team all-loop and is back.

Lettermen in the Blue Springs backfield returning include wingback Jeff Floyd, tailback Lynn Peoples and fullback Andy Sears.

The Wildcats' strong suits are on the defensive line and lineaback. But third-year coach Fred Merrell says his squad lacks experience and depth in the backfield, the offensive line and the defensive secondary.

Blue Springs will run out of a Slot-I.

Connors reaches quarterfinals

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Jimmy Connors, known as a wisecracker as well as a tennis wizard, feigned a few tears when Jan Kodes said he wouldn't bet on him, the favorite, in the final of the U.S. Open.

He also shook a fist in mock anger when he heard his bride-to-be, Chris Evert, had been booed and called a bad sport by the Forest Hills crowd that once loved her.

"There are only two players left who can win — Stan Smith and John Newcombe," said Jan Kodes, the 12th-seeded Czech who was knocked off by Connors, 7-5, 6-3, 5-7, 6-2.

When asked where he would put Connors, Kodes apologetically said third.

"Third place ain't bad," quipped Connors, rubbing his eyes to dry tears that weren't there. "I'm the one who has to go out and play. That's why they put the net up out there. "Until Sunday, no one will know who is best."

The men will be a step closer to determining a champion today during the men's quarterfinals round.

The top-seeded Connors, seeking his third major crown of the year, met Alex Metreveli of the Soviet Union; Stan Smith and Roscoe Tanner were pitted in an all-American duel, and the other American left in the championships, Arthur Ashe, met defending champion John Newcombe. Aging Ken Rosewall faced young Indian Vijay Amritraj. Only Amritraj and Tanner are not seeded.

The women, who reduced their numbers to four Wednesday, meet in the semifinals Friday.

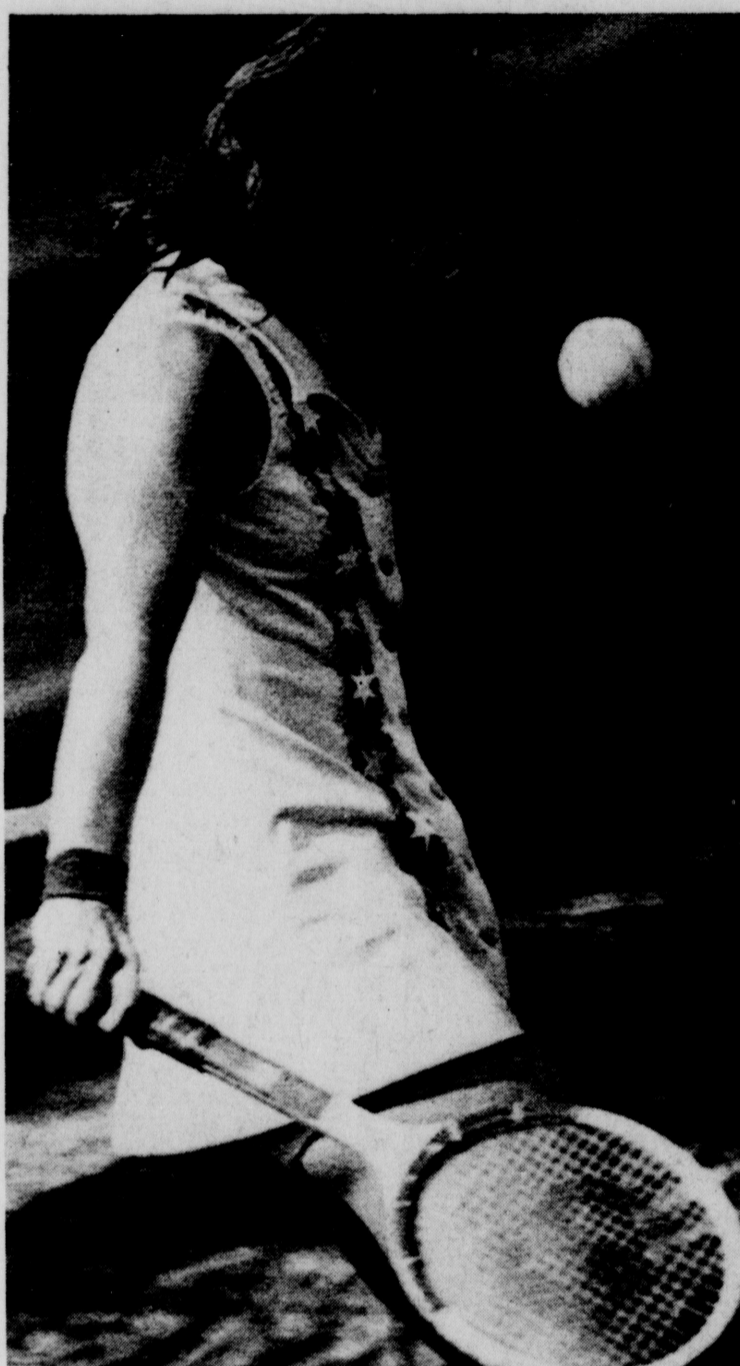

Miss Evert, the Wimbledon champion who won her 56th straight match when she beat Lesley Hunt, 7-6, 6-3, will take on another Australian, Evonne Goolagong — a player she has yet to beat on grass.

Billie Jean King will get a rematch against Julie Heldman.

Miss Goolagong, who last beat Miss Evert in the Australian Open in January, advanced with a 6-4, 7-5 victory over Kerry Melville, also of Australia.

Ms. King beat her good friend and doubles partner Rosie Casals, 6-1, 7-6, and Miss Heldman downed Nancy Gunter 7-5, 7-6.

King of the competition

Billie Jean King goes for the ball on her way to a 6-1, 7-6 victory Wednesday over Rosie Casals in the U.S. Open Tennis Tournament at Forest Hills, N.Y. Her victory advanced her into the semifinals Friday, when she'll meet Julie Heldman. (AP Wirephoto)

Cardinals overhaul Expos for 4-3 win

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Al Hrabosky, who is known as the "Mad Hungarian," insists the St. Louis Cardinals' bullpen will carry them to a National League division title.

And the Montreal Expos, the latest victims of Hrabosky's blazing fast balls, were in no position to argue the stocky left-hander's case Wednesday night.

Rich Folkers first came to the rescue after Mike Jorgensen's two-run homer powered the Expos to an early 3-0 lead.

He finally yielded an eighth-inning run, then the hard-throwing Hrabosky locked up the Cards' fourth straight, 5-4, with a two-strikeout ninth inning.

"The thing is we're all rested," maintained the dark-haired, mustachioed Hrabosky of a Cardinals relief corps which includes himself, Folkers and right-hander Mike Garman.

"We're the youngest bullpen in the league," he added, "and nobody's afraid to go out there and throw strikes."

"The Pittsburgh Pirates have Dave Giusti and they've got Ramon Hernandez, which is a great combination. But the big thing is they've been off and on. I've said all year the bullpen is going to be the big factor."

After the Expos climbed on Cards starter Alan Foster, the stylish Folkers demonstrated the whereof Hrabosky spoke. He fanned seven Expos and issued no hits through 4 2-3 innings until Willie Davis drilled a two-out single to left in the eighth.

Jorgensen followed with a double that scored Davis and produced a 4-4 tie, but pinch-hitter Jim Dwyer's single chased home Bake McBride for the Cards in the bottom of the inning.

Folkers' triumph lifted his record to 6-1, and the save was the seventh for Hrabosky.

Garman, the Cards' winner in a game Tuesday night, stands 6-2 with five saves. Hrabosky is 6-1 and the three relievers combined at 11-0 since the All-Star game.

"It isn't a one-month thing either," mentioned Folkers. "Everybody's been doing the job all year."

St. Louis' victory, minus a stolen base by the speedy Lou Brock, was the Cards' fourth in a row and left them 1 1/2 games behind the idle Pirates in the NL East.

"Winning's what it's all about anyway," said Brock, who went 1-for-5 and had no chance to try for his 100th theft.

Wednesday's stars

By The Associated Press
HITTING—Earl Williams, Orioles, slugged two home runs and drove in three runs to lead Baltimore to a 6-0 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

PITCHING—Don Wilson, Astros, pitched no-hit ball for eight innings before being lifted for a pinch-hitter but took the loss as the Cincinnati Reds defeated Houston 2-1.

Cardinals pick up Hunt on waivers from Expos

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Veteran second baseman Ron Hunt was acquired on waivers by the St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday night from the Montreal Expos.

Cardinal officials said the acquisition of the 33-year-old infielder, which followed St. Louis' 5-4 win over the Expos, was expected to add both depth and experience to the team in the waning weeks of the season.

Hunt had batted .268 in 115 games for the Expos this season after posting a career high of .309 in 1973. In 12 seasons with the New York Mets, Los Angeles Dodgers, San Francisco Giants and Expos he has compiled a lifetime mark of .274.

The scrappy infielder owns nearly every major league record for being hit by pitches. He established a season mark in 1971 when he was struck 50 times and has been hit 241 times during his career, also a major league record. He has been hit 14 times this year.

A native of St. Louis, Hunt was the National League's All Star second baseman in 1964 and 1966.

Skywriters tab OU as favorite

KANSAS CITY (AP) — It's Oklahoma again in the Big Eight Conference and Nebraska second.

This was the way sports writers and sportscasters voted Wednesday at the conclusion of their annual skywriters tour of conference football practice camps.

Oklahoma, given 33 1/2 first-place votes among 36 cast, was selected as the team most likely to win the league championship. The nationally first-ranked Sooners piled up 286 points in the balloting on a basis of eight points for first, seven for second, etc.

Nebraska received the other 2 1/2 first-place votes and 250 points. Missouri was third with 206 points, Colorado fourth with 157, Kansas fifth with 149, Oklahoma State sixth with 112, Iowa State seventh with 83 and Kansas State last with 61.

Oklahoma halfback Joe Washington, a sophomore, was voted the player expected to be the offensive star of the year. He received 26 votes for first place. Quarterback Dave Humm of Nebraska got five, tailback Mike Strachan of Iowa State two and Tony Davis of Nebraska, Steve Davis of Oklahoma and Dave Logan of Colorado one each.

Rod Shoate, Oklahoma line-backer, was named the top defensive player, receiving 22 votes. Oklahoma's Selmon brothers, tackles Dewey and LeRoy, each collected five and Mark Johnson, Missouri tackle, three. Scott Pickens of Missouri, Randy Hughes of Oklahoma and Andre Roundtree of Iowa State each picked up one vote.

Terry Miller, freshman halfback at Oklahoma State, was voted the most promising newcomer on offense and got 13 votes. Only players who have never lettered were considered. Elvis Peacock of Oklahoma had nine votes, Steve Pisarkiewicz of Missouri eight and Bbobby Thomas of Nebraska three.

Don Wilson had a no-hitter after eight innings against the Cincinnati Reds, but was trailing 2-1 because of a costly throwing error by Roger Metzger. Astros manager Preston Gomez lifted him in the bottom of the eighth — to lusty boos from the Astrodome crowd of 8,024 — in favor of pinch-hitter Tommy Helms, who grounded out.

Reliever Mike Cosgrove gave up a leadoff single to Tony Perez in the top of the ninth, the Astros failed to tie the score in the bottom half of the inning and thus Wilson was saddled with the loss.

"This was not one of my toughest decisions," said Gomez. "You have to do the best job you can and forget the record. The name of the game is to win. To be happy, you have to win."

Elsewhere in the National League, Los Angeles beat San Francisco 6-3 in 11 innings, St. Louis edged Montreal 5-4, Atlanta beat San Diego 5-3 and New York defeated Chicago 4-2.

Wilson, 10-11, lost the game when Metzger threw wildly past first on a routine grounder by Pete Rose in the fifth inning, allowing Cesar Geronimo and George Foster to score from second and third.

Dodgers 6, Giants 3
Jimmy Wynn's three-run homer in the 11th inning powered the Dodgers to victory, maintaining their 2½-game lead over Cincinnati in the NL West. The Dodgers and Reds open a crucial three-game set in Cincinnati Friday night.

Ferguson's leadoff homer in the ninth inning, his 14th of the year, had tied the game at 3-3.

Braves 5, Padres 3
Run-scoring singles by Mike Lum, Dave Johnson and pitcher Max Leon in the seventh inning lifted the Braves to their fourth consecutive victory and saddled San Diego with its ninth straight loss.

Mets 4, Cubs 2
"We're doing everything right now," said Manager Yogi Berra, whose Mets stretched their winning streak to seven games by completing a three-game sweep over Chicago.

Sixth-inning singles by pitcher Ray Sadecki, Bud Harelsan, Felix Millan and John Milner produced two runs for the Mets, a bases-loaded walk by Harrelson in the seventh brought in the third and an infield out by Milner in the ninth produced the final run.

Eight innings of no-hit pitching

Houston Astros' right-hander Don Wilson is pictured above during the seventh inning against the Cincinnati Reds Wednesday. Wilson pitched eight innings of no-hit ball, but was lifted for a pinch hitter in the bottom of the eighth. Unfortunately for Wilson, the Reds scored their runs in the 2-1 victory on a throwing error by Roger Metzger. Mike Cosgrove was brought in to relieve Wilson in the top of the ninth and gave up Cincinnati's only hit of the game to leadoff batter Tony Perez. (AP Wirephoto)

AL East Division race tightens; Yankees move into first-place tie

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The New York Yankees are red hot. The Boston Red Sox are red-faced.

Their individual predicaments have given some color to the American League East race.

The Yankees won their 16th game in 20 Wednesday with a 3-0 decision over the Milwaukee Brewers and climbed into a first-place tie with failing Boston in the East.

The embarrassed Red Sox made the tie possible by losing a 6-0 decision to the Baltimore Orioles, their sixth straight loss and their ninth in the last 11 games.

The win moved the third-place Orioles within two games of the top.

Baltimore's suddenly revitalized pitching staff not only beat the Red Sox in their three-game series — they humiliated them with consecutive shutouts.

In the other American League games, the Cleveland Indians stopped the Detroit Tigers 5-4; the Chicago White Sox trimmed the Kansas City Royals 7-0; the California Angels defeated the Oakland A's 5-2 and the Texas Rangers trimmed the Minnesota Twins 1-0.

Jim Palmer and Earl Will-ams combined to pace Baltimore's victory over the stumbling Red Sox.

Palmer, back on the active roster less than a month after 54 days on the disabled list, hurled a three-hitter. Williams, who has hit eight of his 13 home runs since Aug. 1, clubbed two solo homers and drove in three runs.

All but out of it

Kansas City's losing streak reaches seven

KANSAS CITY (AP) — "All good things must come to an end," philosophized Chicago's Jim Kaat, who did more than his share Wednesday night in halting the three-year hex held by Kansas City left-hander Paul Splittorff over the White Sox.

Kaat shut out the skidding Royals, 7-0, on a four-hitter while his teammates ended Splittorff's string of 10 straight victories over the Chisox. Splittorff, now 13-15, had been 9-0 against Chicago the past two seasons.

"The odds finally caught up with him," shrugged White Sox boss Chuck Tanner. "Everytime a guy beats you, the odds are more in your favor the next time."

The catching up began abruptly in the fifth, when Brian Downing led off with a solo homer. That broke up a scoreless duel between Kaat and Splittorff and signaled the start of a six-run Chicago outburst.

All too quickly for 7.584 chilled Royal fans, the White Sox had a 6-0 lead. Splittorff was retired to the showers and Kansas City was headed for its seventh straight loss. The Royals have now lost 9 of 10 in the current homestand and plummeted to third in the American League West, 9½ games behind Oakland.

The White Sox followed

Downing's ninth homer with consecutive singles by Bill Sharp, Bucky Dent, Jorge Orta and Dick Allen. That chased Splittorff and brought on Nelson Briles.

Bill Melton added a run-scoring double, Ken Henderson's sacrifice fly brought in another run and Jerry Hairston's RBI single ended the onslaught.

For the night, Orta cracked two singles and a double good for two RBI and Sharp had three singles in pacing the Chisox' 14-hit offensive against four Kansas City pitchers.

Kaat, meanwhile, was in complete control en route to his 26th career shutout. The 35-year-old southpaw gave up only one extra-base hit, George Brett's one-out double off Melton's glove in the eighth.

Big Eight coaches work on defensive alignments

By The Associated Press

Big Eight football coaches ran their charges through scrimmages Wednesday and some expressed dissatisfaction with their defensive units.

Kansas State Coach Vince Gibson stretched a 20-minute scrimmage into an hour to bone up on the offense. And he said the defense didn't look good, but he was not surprised. He said the defense was "really tired and banged up..." Gibson put freshman quarterback Arthur Bailey through some work with the first team offense and praised his work.

the Jayhawks' defensive depth, saying the club has four ends, three tackles and six people in the secondary who are about equal.

Missouri's defense ran through a controlled scrimmage and Coach Al Onofrio said the offense would get some of the same thing today.

Top offensive and defensive units at Nebraska drew raves following a one-hour scrimmage Wednesday. A unit running Oregon plays managed only one first down in five offensive series. The number one offense came up with four touchdowns in five attempts in drives starting from the 50. Junior fullback Tony Davis scored twice to spark the offense.

Grid Cards pick up Tom Gooden

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Kicker and defensive back Tom Gooden was obtained by the St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday on waivers from the Cleveland Browns in a National Football League transaction.

Gooden, a 6-foot-2, 185-pound product of Harding College in Arkansas, was chosen by Cleveland in the 11th round of this year's college draft.

Russians top U.S. 79-70

SEATTLE (AP) — Alexander Salmikov scored 36 points Wednesday night to lead the Soviet Union national basketball team to a 79-70 victory over the U.S. All-Stars and even their series at one victory each.

The U.S. team, looking exceptionally ragged at times, fell behind by as much as 11 points in the first half as Salmikov hit on five of nine field goal attempts.

All-American David Thompson of North Carolina State failed on all four of his tries from the field for the American squad. Thompson had only three points at the end of the first 20 minutes.

Mo Rivers and Ken Carr kept the U.S. team in contention and helped narrow the gap to 36-33 at the half.

Salmikov collected five points in the opening minutes of the second half as the Russians ran up a 45-35 lead with 17 minutes to play. The Russians opened their advantage to 68-53, then held off a challenge led by Rich Kelly and Monte Towe that brought the U.S. team to within six points at 68-62 with 4:37 remaining.

The game saw tempers flare at that point and coaches and players from both sides swarmed onto the floor but were restrained by referees and the other players.

There also had been a protest from the Russians with seven minutes to play in the first half when Soviet Coach Vladimir Kandrashin apparently protested the flailing elbows of the U.S. players.

Falstaff comes out of tourney losers bracket

Falstaff Over-the-Hill Gang emerged as the semifinalist Wednesday night defeating AA-Used Cars in the Losers bracket of the Men's Slow-pitch Softball Tournament at Centennial Park.

Falstaff posted a 12-0 victory in the double-elimination tourney over AA-Used Cars.

In Wednesday night's opener, AA-Used Cars eliminated Fischer's Concrete 10-0.

The tournament is scheduled to wind up tonight. At 7 p.m., the Jefferson City Stags meet Schlitz Beer of Sedalia in the winners bracket. The loser of that game will face Falstaff at 8 p.m. The survivor goes against the winner of the night's opener. If a deciding game is needed, it will be played at 10 p.m.

The tournament started Friday, but was delayed due to the weekend rains.

Aramis who made few mistakes, if any.

D'Artagnan decided to risk an extra trick penalty in an effort to win the rubber. He grabbed the club; led a heart to the ace; ruffed a heart; led a low trump; finessed dummy's eight — the trick risking play; ruffed a second heart; entered dummy with the jack of trumps; ruffed a third heart; entered dummy again with the trump nine and discarded a club on the long heart.

"Mon dieu," swore Aramis. "I should have led a trump and beaten him."

Judges over-rule owners

ST. LOUIS (AP) — National Football League owners have lost a labor battle with the National Football League Players Association concerning automatic $200 fines for players who leave the bench during fights on the field.

A three-judge panel for the 8th U.S. Court of Appeals, ruling that such fines could not be handed out unilaterally, said Tuesday NFL owners had "engaged in unfair labor practices" by establishing the fines without consulting the players.

The court, however, did not say that the fines already meted out were illegal.

The players association filed a complaint with the National Labor Relations Board in 1971 after 106 players received a total of $21,000 in fines for violating the regulation.

The complaint was rejected by the NLRB, which claimed the rule had been effected by commissioner Pete Rozelle and was not part of the players' contract with the owners.

The appeals court, however, noted owners had approved the rule 24-20, and that Rozelle had merely acted as an agent.

In a concurring opinion, senior Judge M.C. Matthes said Rozelle had initiated the rule "over the increasing possibility of unnecessary injury to players, and perhaps spectators, as a result of fights on the field," but the owners actually had adopted it.

The players contend the rule should be repealed and the issue should become part of their negotiations with the owners.

Chicago Bulls deal Weiss

BUFFALO (AP) — Veteran guard Bob Weiss of the Chicago Bulls has been traded to the Buffalo Braves for guard Matt Goukas and future considerations, the National Basketball Association clubs announced Wednesday.

Weiss, 32, a 6-foot-3 ironman who played in 538 consecutive games before being sidelined with an injury at the end of last season, is a nine-year NBA veteran.

He has a career average of 9.3 points per game. He recovered from his injury in time to see action in 11 playoff games against Detroit and Milwaukee.

The 6-foot-6 Goukas averaged 5.7 points per game during the 1973-74 season. He came to Buffalo from Houston on Feb. 1.

Presenting the 84 mpg Volkswagen.

Since all the car manufacturers are conducting their own mileage tests these days, we at Volkswagen thought we'd conduct one too.

So we modified our body—and our engine. And, of course, we got someone who didn't weigh much to drive.

Lo and behold, we got 84 miles per gallon! Ridiculous? Nobody normally drives like this? Of course. That's precisely our point.

Nobody normally drives like most of those tests you're seeing.

Volkswagen: An honest 25* miles per gallon.

Thousands of American retirees live in Mexico

By ALFONSO CHARDY
Associated Press Writer

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (AP) — Its real name is Plaza San Francisco, but to most Guadalajara residents it is known as "Gringo Park."

It is a small, tree-lined Mexican square dominated by a Spanish colonial church called San Francisco Church. Hence its official name.

But scores of elderly retired American citizens gather in the park almost every morning to "watch the world go by," as one of them put it. Hence its nickname.

"Gringo" is the usual nickname given Americans in Mexico. Guadalajara, a well-planned city of beautiful colonial buildings, fountains and ultramodern structures, is 300 miles west of the Mexican capital. It has a population of 1.7 million.

The elderly Americans in Gringo Park are part of the estimated 15,000 retirees from the United States living in the Guadalajara area, attracted by a good climate, cheaper cost of living and the appeal of living in a foreign country close to home.

Many of the retirees live in suburban areas in homes ranging in price from $50,000 to $250,000.

For them life is peaceful and good.

But not for the Americans who gather daily in Gringo Park. They are among the 700 or 1,000 retirees who live in cheap hotels rooms or apartments in the downtown area of Guadalajara.

Gabriel Romero, immigration department chief in Guadalajara, said they do not constitute a burden for the city because even if their income is low it is still more than most of the poor Mexicans in the area can boast.

The Gringo Park Americans live on pensions, U.S. Social Security payments and interest from investments. Their monthly income averages from $200 to $500 a month.

Chuck Deare, president of the Guadalajara American Society, said his group organizes bingo games and provides guidance for these retirees.

"We help them in every way we can," Deare, a retiree himself, said.

Most of the "Gringo Park" Americans are retired railroad workers, miners, factory hands and teachers. They gather on benches at 9 a.m. and stay there gossiping and talking until noon when they leave for lunch. They return again the next day at the same time.

A retired train engineer from San Diego said he had invested his life savings of $15,000 in Mexican government bonds which pay nine per cent interest annually.

He says he supplements a pension with the interest paid every two months.

One American, from Chicago, a 65-year-old retired miner, said he does not want to return to the United States.

"I know I will kick off here," he said. "And I have no desire to go back home because this is where I have found peace."

Many ant species develop symbiotic relationships with other insects, acting as guests, slaves or herders, National Geographic says.

Less pain tolerance indicated

CHICAGO (AP) — Whites who smoke have less ability to tolerate pain than white nonsmokers, a California study has found.

But no significant difference was found between black and Oriental smokers and nonsmokers.

The study involved 66,410 subjects examined in the Kaiser-Permanente health screening program at Oakland, Calif. It is reported in the September issue of the Archives of Environmental Health, published by the American Medical Association.

Authors of the study are Dr. Carl C. Seltzer of the Harvard School of Public Health, Boston, and Dr. Gary D. Friedman, Abraham B. Siegelau and Dr. Morris F. Collen of the Permanente Medical Group.

They wrote that explanations for the differences in pain tolerance "are not clear at this time."

They suggested that "the possible role of constitutional differences between smokers and nonsmokers should be considered as well as other explanations."

Their latest study found that there was a decrease in pain tolerance among both white male and female smokers and at every age level.
